THE RECLUSE. There is a lingering beauty in her face, Like the last hues of summer o'er a flower; There is a tenderness-a pensive grace Around her still-no stormy passions lour Upon her brow-and there's a chastened calm As if life's storms had fall'n on her in balm.

But still there is a something wanting yet,-Sometimes a sigh her gentle breast will swell, And, now and then, she looks, as with regret, On the stray sunbeams that illume her cell,-As if she wished that she had wings to fice In their bright track, and be at liberty.

She is not happy ! Can a wild bird thrive, Denied the common sun and common air? Or can a wilding forest-flower survive Imprisoned, though tended with the gentlest care? Yes, they may live, but all their life will be A wreck of what they were, when they were free.

She is not happy! Hark! The vesper bell! A passing colour dyes her faded cheek , She does not love that sound of day's farewell-To some, of peace and comfort it may speak; To her it only brings a wildered maze

Of the sweet memories of her early days! Lamps flame around, and the organ's sound Rolls, richly swelling through the lofty dome; And her voice joins the choral band around, But vainly joins them, for her thoughts will roam Back to the bappy days, for ever gone,

When she adored, and was adored by one!

And she remembers how, at that soft hour, She wandered 'midst the chesnut trees with him, And wore the wreath he twined of many a flower, And how her song rose through the twilight dim-Her censers, Lowers, her sister voice, the breeze, And the broad boughs her living canopies!

And memory brings to her the parting scene, The words of anger, all too harshly spoken; And, in a moment, as they pe'er had been, Were all their gentle vows-all rashly broken And how she sought for quiet in this spot,

And vainly sought it—oh! she finds it not! Despair is o'er her-she hath taught her brow An aspect calm and passionless to wear-Her tears are checked, but, driven back, they flow

Into her heart again, and centre there-Burning, though silent, like a lava-lake-Oh, 'twere relief, if that sad heart would break. It must not be-she shall abide her time,

In silent suffering, and it may be long, The blossom, though its hues fade in their prime, Perhaps is rooted as another strong-Yet, if she thought the next should be her knell, How gladly would she hear that vesper bell!

TRIAL OF A BACHELOR.

The Providence R. I. Patriot a few days since contained a pleasant report of the trial of a bachelor, by the club, of which he was a member; for making, as it was alledged, overtures of a matrimonial aspect, and showing signs of abandoning his old associates in celibacy. The Club having resolved itself into a judicial tribunal, according to ancient usage from time mmemorial, the culprit was brought in by the marshal, and allowed the assistance of an able

It appeared in evidence, that the prisoner had latterly been very negligent in attendance upon the periodical meetings of the Club-had been downright attentive to night conventicles, and furthermore, had been heard to utter sighs as as a bedpost when a certain fair damse brushed by him, of a pleasant afternoon.

One witness went so far as to state that he had even taken to poetry; and that he himself had seen a " pair of verses" written in the proper hand of the accused, containing a flaming declaration of love to the damsel aforemen-

In reply to these and other grievous charges, the counsel for the prisoner made an eloquent and learned plea; answering directly and n detail, each specification and charge. he came to that part relating to the declaration of passion to the fair damsel, he said, his client acknowledged, with "tears of contrition," that he could not honestly deny the allegation. confesses that he wrote the verses alluded to. and at the same time, supplicates you to remember, in your clemency, that he was instigated and impelled by the severity of the season, and encouraged by the deceitful smiles of a coquette, with honey in her eye, and mustard in her soul. He discovered the double dealing of this Syren, and adjured her. And he has authorised me to present to the consideration of the fraternity, the following lines which he has addressed and rent to the unworthy object of his atten-

The verses alluded to as having been presented in his defence, we have not room for; but they clearly evince a disposition for any thing, rather than to commit matrimony. The title perfixed is "The Bachelor's Adjuration of a Coquette." After hearing the production recited, the Court decreed that the prisoner should be forthwith set at liberty; and that the Adjuration should be adapted to music, and sung at every quarterly meeting for the especial edification of the fraternity; one copy to be transmitted to the Bachelor's club of Boston, for the benefit of all true and trust worthy brethren of the Literary Emporium.

GEORGE v. JACKSON. This was an action brought by Mr. Edward Wright George, an attorney, against the defendant, who resides in Yorkshire, to recover a sum of money for the maintenance of the defendant' son, and also for money paid for medicines and medical attendance on his account.

H. S. George was a surgeon, and brother to the plaintiff. He recollected young Jackson's iliness last year. He labored under typhus fever, and was seriously ill for five or six weeks; during all that period he required constant medical attention.

Mr. Serjeant Cross-Come now, we have no yet heard who this young Mr. Jackson is. Tell us who and what he is? He is a great hopper. -[Laughter.]
The Lord CHIEF JUSTICE.-A great what?

Mr. Serjeant Cross-Not a hop-merchant, my Lord; but a great hopper and runner. Witness-Yes.

Mr. Serjeaut Cnoss-And your brother, I believe is on the turf? Yes, a little. THE LORD CHIEF JUSTICE-And the you man hops on the turf? [Laughter.] Mr. Serjeant Cross-Young Jackson matched, was he not, against another Yorkshire runner, of the name of Greig, for 1300 aside?

Mr. Serjeant CRoss-Your brother was training him, I believe, at the time he fell ill? He determined that it was to be "a done thing? [A laugh.] I understood so: in fact, it was determined that it should be a decided " cross." [Increased laughter.]

Mr. Serjeant CRoss-That is, it was decided beforehand, that the match was to be lost? Yes. Mr. Serjeant CRoss-And Jackson was to be the loser? Yes. [Laughter.]

Mr. Serjeant CROSS--Now, Sir, upon your oath, did not the plaintiff apply to you to put a blister on Jackson's knee, to afford him an excuse for losing the race? [Great laughter.] He did. LORD CHIEF JUSTICE .- That was to enable him to loose the race without losing his honor. [Laughter.] I was asked to put applications of mation; but I declined to do so, and told them that it would be discovered. Mr. Serjeant CRoss-And were you not al so asked to administer emetics for the same purpose? I was spoken to about giving him a pill. [Roars some description to his knees to produce inflam-

Mr. Serjeant CRoss-To act as an emetic? Yes, I believe so.

Mr. Serieant Cross-And to be forthcoming on the course? [Renewed laughter.] I suppose The LORD CHIEF JUSTICE-Not to accelerate his motion, then?-[Laughter.] Mr. Serjeant CRoss-I fear not, my Lord. But I refused to do any thing of the kind. The LORD CHIEF JUSTICE-You did very right, Sir. Mr. Serjeant CRoss-Your brother would have made a handsome sum by betting against Jack on, would he not? If the thing had off right as it was arranged, he expected, I be lieve, to clear 8001, or 9001.

Mr. Serjeant CRoss-That is, if Jackson contrived to lose according to arrangement? Yes. Mr. Serjeant CROSS-I believe the man who backs a runner, like a man who keeps racers, always pays for the training. So I understand. Mr. Serjeant Cross-Now just tell us the course observed towards this man while training. He was fed on toasted bread and sherry, nd took many other things.

Mr. Serjeant Cross—And this course was adopted to get him into a condition to lose? Such was the object. Mr. Serjeant CRoss-You gave the young man a great quantity of salts, did you not? No, I gave him none; but I understand he was given a great quantity: 'young Jackson told me so.

Mr. Serjeant Cross—Now, have you any doubt that this kind of training it was which brought on the typhus fever? I think the training, coupled with anxiety of mind, did bring on typhus fever. The LORD CHIEF JUSTICE here put it to his brother Wilde, if he thought he could go on with this case? Mr. Serjeant WILDE said, he would submit to be nonsuited.

Mr. Serjeant CRoss stated, that the plaintiff charged for this young man's board at the rate of 500l. a year, besides the other expenses. The LORD CHIEF JUSTICE expressed a hope that after this exposure no gentleman of charactor or honeur would ever lay a wager or matches of this description, as they might be perfectly certain of being cheated .- Plaintiff

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, MARCH 14. Report of the Committee of Ways and Means, relative to the Financial concerns of the State.

Mr. Cunningham, from the committee of ways and means, to whom was referred so much of the Governor's message as relates to the financial concerns of the state, and other subjects connected with said finances, made

REPORT: That an examination of the financial concern of the commonwealth enables them to present the following results:

By the report of the Auditor General, it appears that the receipts into the treasury, in the last fiscal year, including a balance of $167.897 remaining on the first day of December, 1827, amounted to $3,297,867 97 1-2, and that the expenditures within the same period were $3,107,552 51, leaving a balance in the treasury on the first day of December, 1828, of $189,815 46 1-2. It is estimated by the same officer, that the state of the treasury on the first day of December next, will exhibit a balance of $145,615 46, after meeting all the demands of the current fiscal year.

From these simple statements, it is obvious that the resources of the commonwealth, so far as they relate to the ordinary operations of government, are in a flourishing condition; and that with a view to those objects, nothing is required of the committee or the legislature.

The extensive system of internal improvement in which the commonwealth has embarked, has created new wants, and given to a portion of the revenue a new direction. To ascertain the probable extent of those wants, and the means by which they are to be supplied, has been an important part of the business of the committee and to the result of their inquiries they invite the most serious attention. From the estimate made by the committee on inland navigation and internal improvement, it appears that provision should be made for the expenditure of $3,200,000 upon the Pennsylvania canal and railway within the ensuing year, in addition to the sums already appropriated by law. They name that as the largest sum which can probably be required, though the actual expenditure may fall short of that sum by some hundred thousand dollars. But as a just economy demands the completion of the works already under contract at the earliest possible period, in order that they may become productive of revenue, it has seemed advisable to the committee to adopt as their basis of calculation, a sum certainly sufficient, in any contingency which can arise. In order to meet the interest of this sum. and of the former loans for similar purposes certain revenues are specifically pledged by act of assembly.

It is estimated, that should a loan of $3,200. 000 be negotiated the ensuing year, the amount of interest payable before the first day of Feb. next, will be $289,500; and that the means for the payment of that interest, arising from the revenue already pledged, will amount to $200, 620, leaving a balance to be provided for of $88.380. It has already been stated, that there will be a balance in the treasury, after meeting the ordinary expenses of the government, at the end of the fiscal year, of $145,615 46; so that taking all the receipts and expenditures of the com-monwealth together, up to the first day of Feb. next, the former will exceed the latter by $66,725 46. Believing this balance amply sufficient to meet any unexpected demand, or to provide against unforseen diminutions of the fore, propose that the deficiency in the sums

Mr. Serjeant Cross-Now, Sir, was it not supplied from the balance in the treasury on the of interest; and in that case, should the ordinary first day of November next, and they have inserted in the bill which accompanies this report, a provision authorising the State Treasurer, out of such balance, to pay to the commissioners of the internal improvement fund, such sums as may, from time to time, be necessary for the payment of interest, beyond the means already devoted to that object.

The foregoing statements are founded on a view of the financial situation of the commonwealth, under the most unfavorable aspect they can possibly assume. The committe take it for granted, that the receipts from the various sources ol revenue, within the present year, will in no wise decrease below those of the last year.

A comparison of the receipts from the several subjects of revenue for the last four years, exhibits the most gratifyng results, and encourages the committee to believe that a corresponding increase within the present year may be confidently relied upon. The receipts from public year 1825 by $52,018 94; shewing, thus, an average annual increase of $17,339 64. In the year 1828 the increase was $21,741 74; and it thence inferred that at least $20,000 more will be received from the public lands within the present year than were derived from that sourse in the year 1824.

The amount received from auction duties and commissions in the year 1827, exceeded that of the year 1825 by $83,389 53; so that the average annual increase has been $11,129 84. The quarter ending the 28th day of February, 1829, exceeds the corresponding quarter, of last year, by $5,449 17, without taking into the calculation the amount dee for that quarter by some auctioneers, from whom no statement has been received of the sum due by them for the last quarter. It is therefore safe to estimate the excess of auction duties for the present year, above those of last year, at $12,000

The annual income derived from turnpike and bridge stock owned by the state has been increased within the last year about $4,000. As the debts due by the several companies are graduality paying off; and as a great amount of travelling and tansportation has been and will continue to be caused by the wants of the works constructing by the state, it is deemed fair to estimate the increase of revenue from this source, within the present year, at $4,000.

The increase of the tax on retailers of foreign merchandise last year was $12,614 95; of the tax on tavern license, $6,000; of the tax on collateral inheritances, $4,000; -in all, $22,61494. As the tax on collateral inheritances has not yet gone into full operation, several years being frequently required for the settlement of estates. it may be expected to increase in a very large ratio. The committee believe it safe to estimate the increased receipts from these three sources

It appears, thee, that should the receipts of the commonwealth, for the present year, be equal only to those of the last year, they will furnish means for defraying all the ordinary expenses of the government; of paying the interest of all leasts for canal and rail road purposes al-ready contracted, and of a loan of $3,200,000 proposed now by the committee on inland navigaion and internal improvement, and yet leave a balance of $56,735 46. But should the revenue of the commonwealth continue to increase in ratio, which by the experience of the last four years, they are warranted to calculate on, there will remain a surplus of $112,735 46.

The committee are led to believe, from all much of this increase to which they have alluded may fairly be attributed to the great public works in which the commonwealth is engaged; and that thus, those improvements, even before they have been used for the purposes of trans-portation, are made, in part, to meet the expense of their construction.

The retailers and tavern tax-the auction du ties-the payments for public lands, and the income of turnpike and bridge stock, must be immediately dependant upon the activity of our in-terior trade, the abundance of a circulating medium, and the demand for labor and for agricultural produce. Upon all these causes, the execution of the canals and rail roads, by giving employment, at a fair rate of compensation, to great numbers of our own citizens, and by introducing many others from a distance, who must purchase here all the necessaries of life, has produced, and will continue to exert a powerful and favorable influence.

The Committee, in examining the resources of the commonwealh, for the coming year, and the means of meeting the interest of loans, have ta-ken it for granted that a portion of the revenue, not regularly applicable to that purpose, must be transferred from the treasury of the commonwealth to that of the internal improvement fund Upon this supposition, they have shown that no inconvenience will be created, but that on the contrary a large balance will still remain for other purposes of the government. It is, however, by no means certain that any such demand upon the ordinary revenues will be necessary .-It is more than probable that two sources of income, not yet referred to, and which belong exclusively to the fund for the payment of est, will meet the deficiency heretofore stated as likely to occur, and thus leave untouched the large balance which the treasury accounts are expected to exhibit on the 30th of November

It is confidently believed that 24 miles o the Pennsylvania canal, from the mouth of the Juniata to Middletown, and 80 miles of the western division, from Blairsville to Pittsburgh, will be in active operation for the whole of the present season. It is also expected, that by the month of August the navigation will have extended up the Juniata to Lewistown, 45 miles; and up the Susquehanna to Northumberland, 41 miles. The amount of revenue which these works will yield within the present year is, of course, a subject of mere conjecture. The com-mittee, however, are decidedly of opinion that n estimating the nett receipts from this quarter at $35,000, they not only keep within the limits of safe calculation, but that they fall greatly below it.

A further resource for the payment of interest is found in the premium which may be expected upon the contemplated loan of $3,200,000. The committee are aware that no such premium was obtained on the loan recently effected, but they are clearly of opinion, after careful in-quiry, that this failure may be traced to an error in the mode of negotiating loans and want of credit in the commonwealth. This error they have endeavoured to correct in the bill accompanying this report, and they cannot but hope that the change will prove salutary .per cent, only be obtained, that sum, with the revenue in any quarter, the committee, there-fore, propose that the deficiency in the sums make up the whole deficiency in the means of pledged for the interest of canal loans, shall be the internal improvement fund, for the payment revenues of the commonwealth for the present year exhibit an increrse corresponding to that of the year preceding, there will remain in the treasury of the commonwealth on the 30th November, 1829, a balance of above $193,000, instead of $145,615, as estimated in the report of the Auditor General; and such balance will be at the disposal of the legislature, for meeting the interest of future loans.

The committee have endeavoured to show that the present resources of the commonwealth, in the most unfavorable circumstances which can possibly arise, are equal to the payment of interest on the proposed loan of $3,200,000 without any additional taxation at this session of the legislature; and should those calculations which are justified by all former experience, prove to be correct, a large balance must remain after meeting the necessities of the present year.

In this simple exhibition, the friends of internal improvement will find a warrant for pressing lands in the year 1827 exceeded those of the the works to completion with the utmost vigor -and those who have been alarmed by the prospect of taxation, or have apprehended that the state was embarking in the system of internal improvement beyond her means, will find a sure ground of consolation.

The committee are of opinion, that the expemence of another year will suggest important changes in the revenue system of the common wealth. It is now the fact, that the funds devoted to the ordinary expenses of government greatly exceed the regular demands upon the treasury, while those applicable to the payment of canal loans, fall considerably short, thus rendering a transfer necessary from the excess of the one to meet the deficiencies of the other. All these sources of income are in a train of regular and rapid increase-an increase which this year's experience may enable us to calculate with additional certainty. It may then be advisable, as it is ascertained that a certain tax or any fixed portion of it, is not necessary for the ordinary purposes of government, to vest the excess permanently in the fund for the payment of interest. By these means, and by the aid of the tolls, which, after the present year, must inevitably arise from the finished canals, it is confidently believed, that ample provision may be made for the proposed extension of the several lines of canals and railways, without a resort to taxation of any kind; and certainly without the necessity of imposing any tax of burdensome nature.

In the view which the committee have taken of the finances of the commonwealth, as connected with the system of internal improvement, they have confined their investigation to the ability of the revenue of the state to furnish the means of paying the interest on the loans to be contracted by the state, to construct the various lines of canals and railways contemplated by the bill reported by the committee on inland navigation and internal improvement.

The system of internal improvement has been adopted by the legislature, as your committee believe, on a confident expectation and well founded calculation, that the public works, when constructed, will yield an interest on the expenditure, and a surplus fund adequate to the extinguishment of the debt contracted for their construction. The experiment has already been fairly tested; and the developments of that experiment establish beyond doubt, the fact, that canal under favourable circumstances will pay the cost of its construction. The New York canals, constructed at an average cost of guishment of the canal debt. The partial operations of the Schuylkill navigation and Union canal exhibit the most flattering demonstrations n favour of the same result in this state. With agricultural products equal, if not greater; with mineral wealth, exhaustless in almost every va-riety, and a climate more favourable to canal navigation, it cannot be doubted, but that the revenues of the canals in this state will greatly exceed those of the state of New York. With this assurance, nothing is left to hazard; and with the certain demonstration that the works to be constructed will ultimately pay the cost of their construction, every inducement is presented to persevere in a system of internal improvement, which will give to the state a power and wealth limited only by her physical capacities. Indeed, in the opinion of your committee, a perseverance in the system of canal policy, to the extent recognized in former acts of the legislature, is not only justified by prudential considerations, but is demanded as a measure of defence. On one side, the state of New York with the experience of the great advantages o her canals already constructed, is now extendher canals already constructed, is now extending ramifications of them in every direction of her own territory, and even into this state. On the other side, the state of Ohio, still in infancy, is projecting and rapidly completing her canals on an extended scale;—and the state of Maryland is no less zealous in the cause of in Maryland is no less zealous in the cause of internal improvement. To keep pace with the improvements made by neighbouring states, is imposed on this state as a measure of defence. All that Pennsylvania has to do to maintain her superiority, is to avail herself of the superior advantages of geographical position, of climate, of agricultural and nineral wealth, by affording the means of their developement.

In the relative situation of the states, and from their political connexions, the policy adopted by any one of them must necessarily exercise sensible influence on the others. The system of internal improvement would now appear to be the fixed and settled policy of all the states; and if the system adopted in this state is more extended than in others, the cause is to be referred to the natural advantages enjoyed by the state for improved inland navigation, which justify the employment of means commensurate with the magnitude of the object to be realized

As intimately connected with the fiscal concerns of the commonwealth, in relation to the system of the canal policy of the state, the subject of future loans to prosecute the public works, invites the serious attention of the legislature. The experience of the last two years has sufficiently demonstrated the defects of the present system of making loans, and calls loudly for the adoption of a remedy.

The distance of the seat of government from the place where the great monied transaction are conducted, and the manner of advertising the loans, operate very disadvantageously to the interests of the state; and your committee are decidedly of opinion, that it would prove beneficial to the state to have a commis appointed, to reside in the city of Philadelphia, who should be empowered to contract for the state loans, and to make from time to time the necessary transfers of stock; for which purpose the committee make provisions in the bill accompanying this report.

With the bank of Pennsylvania the finances of the commonwealth are closely associated .-Three-fifths of the capital stock of that bank are held by the state; and by far the largest portlod of the loans made by the state is held by this bank. Your committee have been satisfactor informed, that the bank has afforded the man important aid in the various loans negociated by the state, and in the advancement of instalments essential to carry on the works of internal improvement; and has thus lived up to the spirit and intention of its charter; one object of which, as declared in its preamble, was "to promote the regular, permanent, and successful operation of the finances of this state."

To sustain and support an institution in which the state has so deep an interest, is at all times a duty imposed on the legislature, as the guardian of the public weal; and to afford it new every possible advantage would appear to be a measure dictated by a proper regard for the best interests of the state. The charter of the bank will soon expire, and the time is drawing nigh, if not now at hand, when its charter is to be renewed. In the opinion of your committee, the magnitude of the interest of the state in the bank, and the extended scale of the financial concerns of the commonwealth, would render desirable some arrangement on the subject, if practicable, by which the interest of the bank and state may be mutually promoted.

The report of the Auditor General, made at this session of the legislature, exhibits a state-ment of stocks held by the commonwealth, and of appropriations and loans remaining unpaid or the 1st day of December, 1828. Your committee, therefore, do not deem any further exposi-tion necessary. Their investigations have been confined to the ability of the revenues of the commonwealth to meet the interest on loans contracted, and those contemplated to prosecute the public works. And if the views submitted by them are correct, in their opinion, the state of the finances of the commonwealth fully justifies the expenditure, for the ensuing year, recom-mended by the committee on infund navigation end internal improvement.

CURE FOR WEAK EYES.

Take a pair of spectacles with silver rime. dislodge the glasses from them, and lodge the rims on your nose, so that the eyes may have fair play. Probatum est—A gentleman com-plaining of weak eyes enquired at a fancy store for a pair of spectacles; a large box of them were set out before him on the counter, and be commenced searching for a pair that would strengthen his visual organ, which by the length of time it took him in the trial, appeared to be no easy task. After half an hour's investigation, however, he succeeded in selecting a pair to his liking. He held up a newspaper and could read the print with perfect ease. believe, Mister, these will suit my eyes; what's the price?" "One dollar." "There's year money"—said the customer, who, having laid it on the counter, took off his spectacles and departed; but he had not got further than the oor, when he discovered that the spectacles had no glasses in them! and notwithstanding they suited his "weak eyes" so well, he returned them and took back his money.

LATE ENGLISH JOURNALS

A curious pamphlet, entitled "An axplana-tion of the Differences existing between the Manager of the Italian Opera and the Non-coaforming Members of the late Orchestra, written $25,000 per mile, have for some time yielded, among themselves," has just made its appearant only an interest on the expenditure, but a ance. It consists chiefly of a letter of remonstrayes to M. LAPORTE, on the re proposed by M. Bochsa-M. Laponta's answer, approving the conduct of M. Bocnesa string of comments by the "non-conformists," on the answer of M. LAPORTE, and some extracts from letters and observations in a Morning Paper bearing on the subject. It would seem from the introduction, part of which we subjoin, that the differences between M. La-PORTE and the very able musicians who have seceded from his establishment, arose entirely out of the new regulations proposed by M. B., who has rendered himself obnoxious to the persons over whom he was placed in authority. sons over whom he was placed in authority. The introduction says—" M. LAPORTE, having been long in France, left M. Bochen charged with the commission of engaging such orches tral performers as might be required. M. Boomin the aspirations of retired and "heavenly contemplation," summoned to his presence at different times a variety of Instrumentalists, by a proportionate number of circulars. They appeared successively; and, according to their res pective temperaments, sentiments, or necessities, either signed or rejected, the 'New Regu-

M. Bochsa persisting in requiring obedience to his regulations, the non-conformists, Mesera Lindley, Nicholson, Willman, Mackintosh, Platt, Harper, Anfossi, Crouch, Taylor, Wagstaff, Rac, Powell, W. Lindley, Anderson, Nicks, and Card, addressed their letter to M. Lapontus, REHEARSAL OF THE TRAGEDY OF DOUGLAS. The Edinburgh Evening Post mentions, that this tragedy was first rehearsed in the Canongate, at lodgings occupied by Mrs. Sarah Wardsone of Digge's company, and the following was the east of the piece on the occasion:—Lord Randolph, Dr. Robertson, Principal, Edinburghy Kondolph, Dr. Robertson, Principal, Edinburgh, Glenalvon, David Hume, Historian; Old Novela, Dr. Carlyle, Minister of Musselburgh; Douglas, John Home, the author; Lady Rombigh, Dr. Fergusson, Professor, Lady Rombigh, las, John Home, the author; Lady Rendelph, Dr. Fergusson, Professor; Anna (the mail) Dr. Blair, Minister, High Church. The autience that day, besides Mr. Digges and Mrs. Sarah Ward, were the Right Hon. Lard Elisahk, Lord Milton, Lord Kames, Lord Merboddo (the two last were then only lawyers,) the Rev. GLASGOW.

Burke and Hare cannot have been the only individuals concerned in this organized system of murder. As early as 1822, we know of an occurrence which then took place, sufficiently mysterious, and calculated to excite the stronges suspicions, that the murder of no less than three individuals was contemplated at one fell swoop. The circumstances we shall give as they wer nicated to us by one of the parties, and we shall leave the reader to draw his own inferences. In 1822 John Boyle (our informant, now settled in this town (Paisley,) was employed as a labourer in the improvements then making on the Calton-hill. He ledged in the Canongate along with two of his countrymen, named Haggerty and M'Call. On the night of the 25th of December he and his comrades left their lodgings, after supper, at nine o'clock, to take a through the streets; and, directing their steps towards the Castle-hill, they lingered there till about half-past eleven o'clock. On their way home they were followed by a well-dressed man, apparently flustered with drink, who accosted them, opposite the Lawnmarket, with,—
"Well, my lade, is there nothing going to-night?"
Beyle was behind his two companions, and, anxious to get soon home, told him that they inclined to drink, nor had they an money. The stranger insisted that they should taste with him. It was Christmas-every body was merry-and as for money he had plenty; at the same time showing them a handful of silver Boyle declined his effered civility, saying that all the shops were shut; but the stranger re-plied, "Never fear, come with me, I'll find out The other two lads, tempted by this generosity on the part of the stranger, consented to accompany him, and Boyle reluctantly followed, not wishing to part company. They pronongate, and when they were half way between Tron Church and St. Mary's Wynd, and nearly opposite to a well which stands there, Boyle stopped, and wishing to detach himself and his companions from the stranger, remarked that they had gone far enough—that there was house open—that they were obliged to him his kindness, and would wish him goodnight. In their progress down the High-street, Boyle, who walked behind the stranger and the other two lade, had formed a notion, from various circumstances in his conduct, that his typeyness was much more in seeming than in reality, and, not knowing why he should affect drunkenness, scame a little uneasy. The stranger, on this, se which would be open; and accordingly led them down a narrow close on the south side the street. Almost mid-way the stranger stopped opposite what appeared to be the door of the cellar, and taking a key out of his pocket, opened the door and desired them to walk in.

Boyle, whose suspicious were roused before, scame now still more satisfied in his own mind that their conductor's intoxication was feigned from the dexterity with which he applied the key to the door and opened it. He was alarmed, too, at the unusualness of a person opening a dram-shop at that time of the night, having the key of it in his pocket. The celler had two steps of descent in the cutside of the door, and three other steps in the inside. Boyle's companions went in without hesitation; and no sooner had they gone down than the stranger pulled the key out of the lock on the outside, and put it into the lock on the inside, and holding it with one hand, stepped in himself and deed Boyle to make haste and come in too .-Boyle put his head in, and, to his surprise, say but a vaulted cellar, without the least vestige of furniture, or an appearance of its being a spirit cellar. At the farther extremity candle or lamp, which only served to render the darkness visible. Alarmed at the deathlike stillness and desolate look of the place. and still more by what he had observed regarding the door, he peremptorily refused to adnce further. The stranger insisted that he should come in, and at length made a rush on him, and caught hold of his collar to drag him Boyle, rendered desperate, freed himself with a jerk from his grasp, and, with one blow, well planted on his forehead, felled him to the ground. The person fell flat on his back into berating through it was speedily succeeded by the burried trampling of feet from a remote cor ner, and in an instant six or eight men flitted past the light at the far end, and rushed towards the door. Boyle and his two friends immediately fled, and succeeded in regaining the street, having been hard followed a short way up the close by their pursuers. Next morning they examined the close, and came to the place where this strange scene had occurred. They found three or four doors all nearly alike on the right hand side of the close; but learned that none of them were either change-houses or spirit-cellars. The events of that night made a deep impression on their minds, and they believed that they had made a most providential escape from mur-der—a belief which recent events has tended to confirm. Boyle can yet point out the close and the range of cellars to which they were led on. Christmas 1822; and an inquiry of who and by whom these cellars were tenanted in that year may lead to discoveries as pregnant with hor-rors as the precognitions in the West Port have brought to light.

FOR THE DAILY CHRONICLE. WALNUT STREET THEATRE.

Last evening another stage struck hero made is debut, being the fourth within a week; each no doubt, fully expecting to surpass all predecessors. In this, perhaps, there is nothing unreasonable; nothing, at least, is more universal .-Who, in any art or science, is modest enough to rate his professional brother as highly as himself? Does not Mr. A. teach, in a month, what others have failed to communicate in years? Does not Mr. B's. panacea cure where others kill? Does not Mr. C. extract a tooth ten times as delightfully as his neighbour over the way? And is there a fourth rate comedian, on any stage in the country, who would not undertake, if the manager would give him fair play, to teach Wood how the Copper Captain should be acted, or if his talent lay in another direction, to beat WARREN all hollow in Falstaff and Colonel Oldboy? Three of the four have chosen to figure in tragedy, following a propensity almost universal among young aspirants to histrionic honours. In public estimation a tragic actor is generally rated above the most accomplished comedian; probably because he speaks blank verse and wears fine clothes, advantages which comedy is too frequently obliged to dispense with. But, besides these, there are other reasons why a novice may attempt the buskin with less danger than the sock. The defects of a bad figure are concealed by the cloak and of probability. scarf, and more effectually still by the toga. If his gait be naturally awkward and his deportment slovenly, he may brace himself up, and his stiffness will pass for stateliness. Monotonous and pompous declamation is not always easily distinguished from the true tragic elecution. Vulgar familiarity of tone and manner will often go down as a genuine touch of nature; and a rant is peculiarly unfortunate if it be not ranturous received as the true sublime.

The defects of a performer in genteel comedy are easily detected by even the common observer. His dress is usually modern; his language, and the scenes in which he is engaged on the stage, not very different from those with which the audience are familiar. Any uncouthness of manner-the least formality of speech-is offensive; and the slightest flagging of the spirits, is sure to be perceived. That the difficulties which the comedian has to contend with are by far the that, during the many years in which our stage has been overrun with tragedians, such as KEAN. BOOTH, CONWAY, MACREADY, and FORREST. Wood has been left without a rival in Belcour, Marplot, Joseph Surface, Michael Perex. first rate parts. WALLACK's Benedick is almost a solitary exception. The case is similar in England. Lewis was long supreme in comedy; and he has been long dead, without a suc-

But it is time to return to the hero of last evening. His choice of Virginius was certainly proof of courage, if not a symptom of discretion. He labours under the same defect with him who played Tell the other evening;-a weak voice, apparently incapable of sufficient exertion. I could say more, but am unwilling to lose the reputation, which I must have established among the theatrical corps, of being the best natured critic that ever wrote for pay. The other parts were cast as before, and well acted, with one exception. Mrs. STICENEY was very impressive in Service, which she always acts well. In the farce, as well as the tragedy, her paid for commissions, would have made five performance was materially aided by her looks or six thousand dollars more than the actual and dress.

Certain critics, I am informed, have found fault with me for saying, of a former representation o Virginius, that the best performance in the piece was Miss WARING's. To criticise a eritic is unpardonable; and I beg leave to assure these gentlemen, who, I doubt not, will take my year by $5,449 17." Truc .- But might word for it, that they know nothing about the matter-a short and easy way of settling a con-COLLEY CIBBER.

"How old may you be?" said Mr. A. to his friend H. with whom he was conversing the other evening in a convivial party. "I can't tell you," said he, " how old I may be, but I

PHILADELPHIA:

WEDNESDAY EVENING, MARCH 25.

The MERCHARTS of this city have made a esolution to meet at the COFFEE House, from 12 to 1 o'clock, every day (except Sundays) for the transaction of business. This regulation will bring all the business people together at one hour, which will save much time that has hitherto been lost in searching for each other at their different counting-houses.

The able and encouraging report, made by Mr. CUNNINGHAM, Chairman of the Committee of Ways and MEANS, on the 14th instant, will be read with pleasure by all who feel interested in the financial prosperity of the Commonwealth, and in the successful prosecution of the extensive scheme of internal improvement which she has adopted. We are glad to have an official and authentic statement of our WAYS and MEANS, which ought to convince even the croakers that the Internal Improvements now in progress can and will, in all probability, be completed without the necessity of resorting to any additional taxation .-No one, we presume, will consider the Committee too sanguine in assuming that, during the current year, there will be, at least, no falling off in the aggregate produce of the revenue: and, upon this assumption alone, he Treasury will be in ample funds to defray the expenses of Government, and interest on loans made and to be made, down to a period subsequent to that when the Commonwealth must be amply relieved by the revenue arising from the works which she is carrying on.

The Committee expect that at least $35,000 will be received from tolls on the Canals, during the ensuing season; and we cannot but think this a very moderate estimate. That would indeed be an unprofitable investment, which, in the fourth summer, hould not yield $35,000, in return for an expenditure of three years in time and three millions in money.

As to the estimated increase in the produce of certain branches of the revenue. we should be inclined to dissent from the conclusions arrived at by the Committee.

Thus, in their speculations on the receipts from public lands, the Committee do not observe that the pressure of the act of 1826 occasioned the excess in these receipts in the subsequent years. That act has probably produced nearly its full effect; and, even if no change in the law should be made, it would be unsafe to calculate on the receipts from this source being much more than maintained at their present amount. But, if the bill on this subject. now before the Legislature, should pass, a material deficiency may be looked for. An increase of $20,000 in hisitem, as estimated by the Committee, is beyond the bounds

The Committee say,-" The amount received from auction duties and commissions. in the year 1827, exceeded that of the year 1825 by $33,389 33; so that the average annual increase has been $11,129 84. The quarter ending the 28th day of February 1829 exceeds the corresponding quarter of last year by $5,449 17;" and they estimate the increase in the present year at $12,000. The Committee omit to mention that, by the act passed in 1325-6, the duties on sales at auction were increased 50 per cent, from and after the first of May 1826; that, in consequence of this, the receipts for commissions and duties, in 1826, exceeded those in 1825 by 34,549 39; and that, as the receipts, in 1827, exceeded those most formidable may be inferred from the fact in 1825 by only $33,389 33, there was an actual falling off in this branch of the re-

In 1825 the auction commissions pro duced $19,100-duties (one per cent.) Marlow, Don Felix, and a long list of other $75,870 67-total $94,970 67. In 1826 the auction commissions produced $20,700 -the duties (one and a half per cent after the first of May,) $108,820 06-total $129,520 06. In 1827, the commissions and duties (one and a half per cent during the whole year) yielded $128,360.

Here is no ground for stating an " average annual increase." The amount was swelled, in 1326, by the imposition of an additional tax. The produce of the auction duties and commissions, in 1827, was less than in 1826. If the amount of sales at auction, in 1827, had been but equal to that in 1825, the duties alone would have vielded $113,806, which, with the sums receipts in 1827. What were the aggregate receipts for the last year (1828) the Committee do not inform us, but state that the first quarter of the present year "exceeds the corresponding quarter of the last they not have added that the "corresponding quarter" of last year fell short of the "corresponding quarter" of the year before, by about the same sum? There anpears no reason for concluding, from the facts stated by the Committee, that this can. at present, be safely calculated on, as an flames could be subdued. There was insurance as slaves.

but will probably stand at about $130,000, the present year.

We are not disposed to go through the items, or examine this part of the report too closely. It will be a source of sincere gratification to us, if all the anticipations of the Committee shall be realized.

A resolution moved by Mr. CROPPER, at he meeting recently held in LIVERPOOL, for the purpose of considering the best means of removing the restrictions on commercial intercourse with CHINA and the EAST INpies, is in these words :- " That it appears from official returns, that in the year 1814 there were exported to India 604,800 vards of printed calicoes, and 213,408 vards of plain calicoes; while in 1827 the export of printed calicoes was 14,362,551 yards, and of plain 19,932,580; the increase in the export of plain calicoes, the description commonly worn by the natives, being 93 fold ;-that, of cotton twist, so late as 1823, the export to India was only 121,500 lbs. weight, while in 1827 the export was 3,063,968 lbs. weight, and has since been progressively increasing. That in metals, hardware, earthenware, and many other goods, an immense increase of our export has also taken place. That in the year 1819, the settlement of Singapore, at that time resorted to chiefly by pirates, was taken possession of by the British government. and made a free port, and in 1827, its import trade amounted to 13,387,185 Sicca Rupees, with a corresponding export: thus shewing the extensive benefits to be derived from a free commercial intercourse, and altogether affording a greatly increased and increasing field of employment for British shipping."

The journeymen Carpenters of Pittsburgh, have recently held a meeting, at which they resolved that the price which they received for their labour was altogether inadequate for the support of their families, and that they will expect at least 25 per cent, advance on their labor after the 1st of April.

The Common Council of New York, at a neeting on Monday evening, voted the freedom of the city to the Hon. Martin Van Buren, secretary of state.

It is stated that within 36 hours after the news of the late murders and piracies had reached the department of state, peremptory orders were issued from the President for the Natches to sail in 24 hours at farthest, with instructions to the commander of the squadron, thoroughly to scour the West Indies without cessation, and to visit every port which could afford the murderers any shelter, at least once a week.

At Boston, on Friday night, about half-past eleven o'clock, the jewellery store of Mr. Daniel Lombard, jr. PIRACIES. Accounts from Key West of the 28th ult. state that at the request of Mr. Rodney, our commercial agent at Havana, the French Consul had promised every aid in his power in ordering convoys for American vessels: and that the French brig Beausis was preparing for that purpose. It is also stated. that Com. Laborde has informed the Commercial agent at Havana, that 5 or 6 of the Spanish Squadron will immediately put to sea, and will protect such American vessels. as may be placed under their care. Two English schooners have arrived. The Captain of the vessel which brings he above information, states that on his way from Havana, he saw two British armed schooners, having in company a piratical ressel, supposed to be the one referred to. The Nassau Royal Gazette of the 24th January says, information not to be doubted has been received there of a schooner called the Mulatte, which had been engaged in the African slave trade, having not long since been carried away, and was lately cruizing is a pirate, between San Nicholas and Key Sal Bank, and according to report, captured Hamburg or German vessel, principally laden with dry goods, and it is feared her crew was put to death. There was also cruizing in the same neighbourhood a small schooner with 14 or 15 men, which boarded one of the traders between Havana and the adjacent ports. At Cay de Cruz, castward of Cayo Romano, there is a gang of pirates supposed to number 25 or 30 men, who are said to have captured one or two small vessels belonging to Nassau.

THE LATE PIRACIES. Extract of a letter from an officer on board the U. S sloop of War Erie, dated Mantanzas, March 5. "We left Pensacola on a short cruise of observation on the 20th February, with the intention of returning thither in a few weeks, on account of the trial of the Federal requiring our presence. Baffling winds procrastinated our arrival at Key West till the last day of the month, when the news of the late barbarous piracies had arrived only a few hours before from the Havana. Not a moment was lost in getting under weigh; and on reaching the Moro Castle, our boat was despatched into the harbor, to offer convoy to any of our merchantmen, and obtain all the information necessary to enable us to plan an expedition with the fairest hopes of

"Should our boats luckily fall in with hi we all feel assured of his capture, which will immediately put a stop to any farther depredations from these lawless freebooters. The ship in the mean time will be actively engaged in the duty of convoying our merchantmen Havana and Mantanzas, and will not leave the station unprotected till relieved by other cruizers. You may look for the earliest intelligence return of which is not looked for in less than ten or fifteen days.'

The last Richmond Whig, says:-"Letters have been received from Mr. John Lewis, formerly of this city, dated Monrovia, Jan. 6th, 1829, post marked Pensacola-confirming the Bristo account of the death of the Rev. Extract of a letter to the editor of the Baltimore Patriot, dated Washington, March 19th, 1829:- "Walking into the Senate Chamber this morning, I found it deserted by its late tenants. The only person in it was Mr. Jas. A. Simpson, a limner and portrait painter, making arrangements to sketch the Chamber as it appeared on the inauguration day. When finished the painting will cover a square of fifteen feet. The painter has secured a sketch of the persons present, and the whole will certainly, if well executed, be an imposing group."

BOWLAND STEPREMSON NEW-YORK SUPERIOR COURT-MOSDAY

(Sittings in Bunco.) Before Chief Justice Jones and Mr. J

At the opening of the Court this men Mr. A. S. Garr stated that he had a motion make in the matter of Rowland St who had been committed to the custody of . Sheriff on a capias ad respondendum Mr. David B. Ogden observed that he saw ne present to make any opposition.

Mr. Garr believed that Messrs. Ward Hoyt were attorneys for the plaintiff (Mr. Sheriff Parkins.)

After the lapse of a few minutes, Mr. We entered the Court, and Mr. Garr proceeded read an affidavit of Mr. Stephenson the manner in which he had been taken fro Savannah. Mr. G. also read the advertise issued by the plaintiff offering a reward $1500 for the apprehension of Mr. Stephens He concluded by remarking that upon strength of the affidavit he had just read, learned Chief Justice had granted a rule calli upon the plaintiff to substantiate his claims u

he defendant. Chief Justice Jones begged to be un that it was not his intention to rely upon the a davit, as the defendant had a right to call up the plaintiff to show his cause of action.

Mr. Ward hoped that the Court would gran him farther time. He wished to procure affide vits from the British Consul and Mr. Go to show under what circumstances the defendat gave himself up.

Mr. Garr said he should like to know w ther the gentleman had an affidavit of the ledged debt Mr. Ward replied in the affirmative, and pre-ceeded to read an affidavit of Mr. Parkins, about ing that the firm of Remington, Stephenson Co. of London, was indebted to him in the amount of $76,000 and upwards; and that the defendant was one of the said firm. It ran is the usual form. Mr. Garr considered that this was a case of much importance, and hoped that no adjour ment would take place, as the defendant must s necessity be detained in close custody. Mr. Ward .- "Yes; for a pretty large sum." Mr. Ogden believed that the Court would grant as little delay as possible, when the res the application involved the liberty of an individual. Should the case be adjourned until the following day, it would be out of his power to attend; as he was compelled to be absent fro New-York. If the affidavits which the gentleman proposes to adduce could be submitted, he objection. Mr. Ward.—The affidavits would be from the British Consul, Mr. Goodhue, and Mr. Hays, to show that he surrendered himself. That his whole conduct was perfectly voluntary.

Chief Justice Jones wished to know whether that was after his abducation. Mr. Ward admitted that it was; and observed that it was sufficient for the detention of the defendant.

Mr. Price ridiculed the idea; and considered that if that was all the ground of opposition, it would be of no avail. Chief Justice Jones reminded Mr. Ward that the motion was founded upon the advertisement, as being the cause of his illegal arrest. If the other side were willing to admit the affidavits of the British Consul and Mr. Goodhue, and that he voluntarily gave himself up to Mr. Hays, the rgument might proceed. Mr. Ogden saw no reason why all that was asked for, should not be admitted; as it must be very evident that Mr. Stephenson was glad to get ashere with any one.

Chief Justice Jones.—If the affidavite show that Stephenson subsequently gave himself up he could not see of what avail it would be to the

Mr. Ogden .- If the unfortunate man had be illegally and foreibly brought within the tion of New York, he was entitled to his discharge.

Chief Justice Jones considered that upon such doubt that if he was illegally brought within the jurisdiction of the New York Court, he could not be held upon their protess. The court, however, would like to hear Mr. Ward's

The counsel on both sides having held a few minutes conversation,-Mr. Ogden said that he should prefer going on and arguing the question, and the affidavits could be put in afterwards. Mr. Justice Oakley observed that it was les o Mr. Ward. It would be for him either to acquiesce or not. If, however, the question we rought on in the present state of facts, the court were willing to hear it. Chief Justice Jones wished to know whether the affidavits could not be procured by two o'clock. Mr. Ward could not tell. He was disposed to rocure them, if possible. He was at a less to snow why the case was so hurried. Mr. Price.-" Then I presume it is no very great hardship to be abducted, and afterwards ocked up in jail." Chief Justice Jones .- " If the defendant is antitled to relief, he ought to be discharged immediately. Besides, one of his leading counsel will leave the city this afternoon, and his valuable assistance will be lost. I shall require the affidavits by two o'clock." Mr. Ward .- I will take all the chances, and get them if I can. At the appointed hour the several counsel as-sembled, and Mr. Ward stated that he had not been able to procure affidavits, as the gentlemen from whom he wished them refused to testify upon the subject. Ch. J. Jones.—Are the gentlemen here? De they decline making an affidavit?

Mr. Ward.—I cannot get them to attend, or make the requisite affidavit. I should therefore request the aid of the court to enforce their pre-Ch. J. Jones .- That cannot be. Parties must get their witnesses upon a case like this as they Mr. Ward.-Will the court have the kindness to look at the consequences of such a decision.

The party will get out of prison, and a creditor to such an immense amount will lose the possibility of ever gaining a cent of it. Ch. J. Jones .- I cannot help it; unless you can show that we have the power to supoma witnesses, on a matter of this kind. Mr. Ward.-Does it not come within the great power of the Court?

Ch. J. Jones.-We have not the power, Sir. It might be a defect in judicial proceedings.

Mr. Ward.—Then I shall ask the Court to let he cause stand over until to-morrow. Mr. Justice Oakley .- Have you applied to the gentlemen personally?

Mr. Ward—I have, and used every exertion to procure the affidavits. Perhaps they might have been so occupied in business that they could not conveniently comply with my wishes. Mr. Ogden-I presume it is hardly to be sup posed that if the gentlemen have refused to make affidavit to-day they will consent to-morrow. And if not the defendant is to remain in custody until that is ascertained. Ch. J. Jones-The question will not depend upon what you propose to show, if he was taken into any person's custody from the illegal arrest. Mr. Ward-I shall show by his own declaration that he did not consider himself under ar-

with Mr. Hayes.

Mr. Garr—If, as you say, he intended to commit soicide, it shows that he was in a state of bind not competent to judge for himself,

Chief Junice Jones—It may be. But I cannot think it can be shown that he was one mo-ent at personal liberty.

Mr. Ward—Well sir; we will endeavor to conrince the court of that fact.

Mr. Garr-We have Stevenson's declaration on eath, that he was a prisoner until discharged Mr. Ogden-The words of his affidavit are

Mr. Patterson.—It distinctly states that he was under arrest, down to the moment when he was set at liberty by the habeas corpus.

Mr. Ogden—I also hope the Court will bear in mind the fact that these gentlemen cannot come forward; as by so doing they may make themselves criminally liable.

Mr. Patterson—The gentleman on the other side has stated a wish to have the British Consequence and Mr. Gentleman beautiful Consequence and Mr. Gentleman control and control and

Chief Justice Jones—I believe Mr. Goodhuc

Mr. Justice Jones—I believe Mr. Goodhuc Mr. Justice Oakley—I hold it to be acknow-baged that Mr. Stephenson is entitled to Justice, but not to any particular favor.

Chief Justice Jones—I do not know him in any ther character, but as a man illegally brought Mr. Patterson-Undoubtedly; and I would nearely premise, that the charges that have been rought against him are entirely groundless, as rilled a avents.

Mr. Justice Oakley—I do not profess to act upon Newspaper reports; but look upon the desident as an absconding bankrupt, and he cortainly eught to be amendable to some civil tribunal.

Mr. Ogden-Yes; but he has not been treated Mr. Chief Justice Oakley-I admit, sir. The aws of the country have been grossly violat-Mr. Patterson-No sir; he has bee a discharged this morning before the Recorder. The agents of the commission were served with an order to show cause of action before the Recorder this morning. Mr. Jay attended, and consented to his discharge.

Chief Justice Jones-Well gentlemen, I should inclined myself to go on; but my associate is sposed to give more time to the plaintiff. Usen this affidavit orders were granted by the Recorder for the plaintiffs in the two last named raits, to show cause why Stephenson should not be discharged on common bail, and by Chief feetice Jones in the suit of Parkins. Cause was to be shown in all three suits yesterday. The Recorder on reading the affidavits laid before time, and hearing the counsel, granted an order to discharge Stephenson. Chief Justice Jones thought proper to have cause shown in Court; and thought proper to have cause shewn in Court; and accordinly the matter came up before him and Mr. Justice Oakly yesterday. Messrs. D. B. Ogden, Garr, Patterson and Price attended as Counsel for Stephenson; R. R. Ward, for Mr. Parkins. fr. Ward read an affidavit of Mr. Parkins, in which he expressly denied any collusion with the abductors before he was informed of Stephenson's arrival here. The affidavit also set forth in the usual form, the indebtedness of the firm of Remngton and Co. to the plaintiff, in the sum of $76,000 A very desultory argument took place, as Mr. Ward wished to procure affidavits from Messrs. Buchsuan, Goodhue, and Hays, as to the circumstances of Stephenson's detention in this city. Time was allowed for that purpose til two o'clock, when Mr. Ward stated that he had been unable to procure the affidavits, as the gentlemen above-mentioned refused to testify. He asked for process of subpæna, if it was in the power of the Justice to grant it. The Court said is was not. After much discussion of many collateral points. Mr. Ward prayed for an adjournment to this day. Chief Justice Jones was in favor of discharging the defendant immediately. Justice Oakley, however, differing form him in opinion, the matter was adjoured over until this morning at eleven o'clock, when such further affidavits as might be procured were to be read, and the legal question as to the validity of the arrest, argued. We shall report the proeedings.

P. S. The motion to discharge Stephenson was argued this morning, with uncommon abili-ty. It is our wish to give as correct a report of what transpired, as possible, and we therefore postpone it till to-morrow.

The application was to discharge the Denfenmmon bail. The Coprt went further and said that as the process under which he was held issued from them, they would discharge Stephenson altegether from it, as they held that in legal contemplation he was not within the ction at the time when it was served.

He was pursued by Samuel Hawkins Esq. of Alexandria, on whose testimony he was socured, and now awaits a legal process to be returned to the place from whence he started.

Patents and Patentees.

Having formerly been employed by the United States, in the department for patenting merul inventions, and having since that period prepared, during many years, all papers pointed out by law for obtaining patents, without one solitary instance ever occurring of having a petition, drawing, or specification ever rejected at the Patent Office. I now respectfully make known to all persons concerned, that much time, great and annecessary trouble, tedious delays, labour and money, expended in long journeys to Washington, may be saved to them, if their papers shall previously be properly and methodically arranged, and their drawings distinctly and specifically defined.

It is not sufficient that the instrument should be written in good language, but the whole ought to be embodied by a person skilfully familiar in mechanics and art, corresponding with scientific lore in the words and tenor describing the object, because it forms an essential part of the patent, consequently its validity, in almost every ease of exception, would be determined upon the averments laid down in the specification. Therefore, without the most particular attention to fell, clear, and explicit elucidations, every patent mint be held upon very trail security, and many have been pronounced null and void under judicial investigation, owing to some defect in the body of the description, notwithstanding elaborate pains had been taken to multiply vague and unmeaning law phrases to no purpose, clearly evinoing gross deficiency in the practical knowledge so indispensable to accurate and manifest demonstrations of the mechanic powers when applied to machinery.

Superior to Panaceas for the cure of the following diseases, viz.:

NECROSIS, (or affections of the Bones;) KING'S EVIL, (or Scrofula;) CANCEROUS, and inveterate ULCERS; LIVER and BILIOUS COMPLAINTS; RHEUMATIC affections of the head and SYSTEM generally; ULCERS of the MOUTH and THROAT; SYPHILIS, and all diseases arising from the improper use of MERCURY,

As a general deparative article, or cleanser of the blood, this remedy possesses invaluable powers; it improves the appetite, and has also the remarkable effect of depriving the skin of that yellow bilious tint, which is so common in bilious constitutions.

The Columbian Syrup may be had of Warder Morris, Druggist, No. 45 North Third street, William Rovoudt, Druggist, corner of Fourth and Wood streets, Thomas Cave, N. PIANO FORTE MANUFACTORY. PIANO FORTE MANUFACTORY.

THE opportunity afforded by the winter months has enabled the advertiser to repleased his ware Room, anticipating as usual at the opening season, an influx of demand for the article in which he is happy to say his success in the proximity to perfection has acceeded his most sanguine expectation.

The ready sale of these improved Piano Fortes he and has been a most satisfactory test of this fact, and it is a matter of no small moment to offer again his unfolged thanks, for the almost unparalleled encouragement with which he has been met, by his friends of the Company of the

with which he has been met, by his friends of the Centry as well as the City.

In thus tendering his grateful regards to his fellow actizens and patrons generally, he avails himself of the opportunity of offering an entire new assortment of the best production from his Manufactory, which certainly will need no verbal recommendation from himself, sesured as he is that his instruments can speak purely and for the manalyse.

sured as he is that his instruments can speak purely and firmly for themselves.

The expenses of this establishment being perhaps less than any other in the city, he feels encouraged to any that Country merchants who may be venders or have orders, will further their interest in the two fold view of judicious and pecuniary advantage in giving him a call. Piano Fortes repaired neatly and promptly. Old ence taken in part pay for new.
